About the photographer

The son of a keen amateur photographer, Kenny Loh shared his father's passion from an early age. In secondary school, he became his school's, as well as its magazine's, official photographer. After studying photography in the United States, Kenny returned to Malaysia, where he established himself as a successful commercial photographer, working predominantly for Kuala Lumpur-based department stores, record companies and advertising agencies. In the early 1990s, he moved to Taiwan then China to pursue more commercial work, where he stayed for nearly 20 years before returning to Malaysia in 2009. Upon his return, Kenny decided to explore his home country, where everything seemed to have changed. His new book is a culmination of his trip, documenting the people he met along the way. Born In Malaysia will be available at all MPH bookstores, MPH Online and major bookstores in September.
